

Welch: John S. Charlton at Welch Elementary currently has three classrooms serving students from around the county. Students receive small group instruction in their classroom as well as have opportunities for inclusion with peers. Students enjoy social opportunities, recess, related arts and some academic classes during those inclusion times. Attention is provided to each student's individualized program to meet their needs in the classroom. Students have access to materials utilized in general education classes, specialized differentiated curriculum as well as focus on the Essential Elements Standards and Dynamic Learning Maps. Multiple opportunities are provided for students to learn and engage not only in the school but off campus during community learning instruction. It is never too early to start preparing students for success later in life. CRCWP is a referral program from a student's homeschool/district. Please reach out to the John S. Charlton main office with any questions.
